

True freedom requires free thought and free thought requires access to multiple viewpoints. We already suffer from a lack of global perspective, and we are increasingly losing journalistic integrity to market driven reportage. As more and more of our news organizations are controlled by fewer and fewer hands, we face the very real risk that our perceptions will be less based on reality, and our freedoms will not be worth the newsprint they are touted on.